Legends and traditions of the past merge with the present to form the world as we now know it. The past is firmly rooted in the present, as the present will be firmly rooted in the future. Because the past has left its mark on us and because we will leave our mark on the future, the 1982 EXCALIBUR is dedicated to all those Knights who have come before us and to all those Knights who shall come after us.

A FAIRY TALE COME TRUE

by Tonya Kay McMurray

Once upon a time, there was a beautiful little girl who grew up on the land her father rented from the king and queen. While walking through a plowed field one day, she chanced upon a prince. They fell in love and a few years later they were married.

Sound like a fairy tale? Maybe so, but this is the story of Prince Charles and Lady Di. Their marriage has been called everything from "the Wedding of the Century" to "a fairy tale come true," and, indeed, the titles seem to fit.

When Prince Charles began his search for a bride, there were numerous restrictions placed on the woman who would one day become the Queen of England. Charles could not marry a Roman Catholic; nor could he wed a divorcee. The girl he married must be pure — a girl without a past, and she must be young enough to bear him heirs. Queen Elizabeth hoped that Charles would marry into one of the better European families so that the purity of the royal blood might be preserved. And, as if all these stipulations were not enough, Charles's choice then had to be approved by the sovereign (his mother, Queen Elizabeth) or both houses of Parliament.

Charles's choice, Lady Diana Spencer, seemed to meet all the requirements. She was publicly declared a virgin. She does not smoke, nor does she drink much. She is, in the words of her step-grandmother, novelist Barbara Cartland, "purity itself." At the age of twenty, she is certainly old enough to bear Charles an heir or two. Furthermore, Diana is of royal blood. Through King Henry VIII, Charles and Diana are sixteenth cousins once removed; and through William Cavendish, third Duke of Devonshire, and a descendant of James I, they are seventh cousins once removed. Apart from their regal genes, Diana and Charles share a love for the outdoors, skiing, salmon fishing, and music. And to top off this outstanding list of attributes, Queen Elizabeth, and, indeed, it seems most of England, appears to have fallen in love with the beautiful Diana.

When Diana accepted the $60,000 diamond and sapphire engagement ring, she agreed to become the Princess of Wales. As princess, Diana will never be able to address Charles by his Christian name in public, but will have to address him as "Sir" or "Your Majesty." She must always walk at least one step behind him. She will not be able to arrive anywhere without being announced. She will plant many a tree, lay many a foundation, launch many a ship, and make polite conversation with many a dignitary. And she must do it all with an unwavering smile and never a cross word. Through all her duties, she must appear gracious, lovely and content. Diana, however, appeared prepared for the responsibilities of her position on July 29, 1981.

Dressed in an ivory silk taffeta and old lace dress followed by a 25-foot silk train, Lady Diana Frances Spencer walked down the aisle of St. Paul's Cathedral to wed Charles Phillip Arthur George Mountbatten Windsor, Prince of Wales. She carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias, golden Mountbatten roses and the traditional myrtles and veronica, cut from bushes grown from cuttings from Queen Victoria's wedding bouquet. The ceremony itself was traditional, except for the omission of the word "obey" from Diana's wedding vows. Charles placed the Welsh gold ring on Diana's finger and the two were pronounced man and wife. Through the cheers of well-wishers lining the London streets, Prince Charles and Princess Diana led the processional back to Buckingham Palace, where a breakfast reception was held.

"This is the stuff of which fairy tales are made," the Archbishop of Canterbury said in his sermon. "Those who are married live happily ever after the wedding day if they persevere in the real adventure, which is the royal task of creating a more loving world. That is true of every man and every woman undertaking marriage. It must be specially true of this marriage in which are placed so many hopes."

BASEBALL SEASON STRIKES OUT

by Donald M. Vail

Baseball, long called "America's favorite pastime," was not America's favorite pastime in 1981, at least not for fifty days. Because of a dispute over free-agent compensation, Major League Baseball players walked out on the games scheduled for that infamous day of June 12. Not until July 31, after countless talks and meetings between players and owners, did the players finally come to a general agreement with the owners.

The issue in question stems from a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that stated baseball is a sport, not a business, and therefore the players were bound to their teams. The players felt they should be free agents. In 1975, the players got what they wanted and some were made free agents. However, the question was never really resolved, as the 1981 baseball strike shows.

What effect did this have on the fans? Many have been going to baseball games all their lives and the baseball strike disturbed them. What has happened to the game? It seems that the original intention of sports has been overlooked: recreation. Somewhere along the way too much importance has been placed on the legalities and not on the entertainment of the game.

Certainly the baseball players have the right to protect their well-being in the game, and the owners have the right to make sure they are making the most profit from the game, but why should the fans have to suffer? The game changes from a sport to a feud. A line needs to be drawn as to what is more important, the players or the spectators. Since games could not be played without spectators, they need to be treated with respect rather than used as a tool to get what one wants.

Of course it does not look like many new views are being imposed on the owners or players, and we can expect more strikes in the future. What will the fans do if another strike does come? Maybe they can get the old bats and balls from storage and play for themselves. It would certainly be simpler.

VICTORY FOR WOMEN

by Tommie Waddle

Sandra Day O'Connor has been an accomplished woman: dutiful daughter, devoted wife, loving mother of three; then there was her career. She was a hard-driving attorney, state legislator, bank director and an appeals court judge. Yet all of that was prior to the first Monday in October, 1981 when she began her first working session as a member of the Supreme Court, the highest judicial honor that has ever been bestowed on an American woman.

Fulfilling her father's dreams, Sandra Day attended Stanford University and after graduating she married fellow student John O'Connor. With her common sense, she became a good lawyer. At the age of 51, she was nominated for the Supreme Court to replace Justice Potter Stewart. Only four days after her nomination was announced by President Reagan, 33 senators were already committed to voting for Mrs. O'Connor and an additional 20 were leaning toward supporting her when the nomination was considered in September of 1981. At this point there were no opposing votes.

Abortion was the only issue casting any shadow on her prospects for confirmation. All indications were that she was opposed to abortion and she reportedly told Reagan that she found abortion "personally abhorrent." The same controversy would have raged around any male nominee who did not appear to follow a fanatic right-to-life line. Before going to the bench she declined to voice her opinion on the Supreme Court ruling on legalized abortion in 1973. But she did believe in following legal precedents whatever her beliefs on abortion. The most important thing is that she stands by the Constitution. Almost single-handedly she overcame any serious opposition which might trouble the waters on her way to the Supreme Court. Members of Congress said they were impressed with her legal credentials and her grasp of constitutional issues likely to come before the Supreme Court.

During Sandra Day O'Connor's swearing-in ceremony, she put on her robe, turned to the crowd, then walked over to take her seat among the justices and that is when the tears started falling. Her very presence on the bench of the highest court in the United States seemed to say that women were regarded as more equal than they had been in the past. In the 191-year history of the Supreme Court, Sandra Day O'Connor is the first woman ever to sit on the bench.

COURT LIFE

SAME OL' ROUTINE?

This year the every day routine here at Kimball became boring. Nothing ever happened. So, we had to amuse ourselves in other ways. We learned how to write with our feet and walk on our hands. We changed how we dressed, too.

The school board also included in our curriculum such interesting subjects as carrying furniture without our hands and how to push your favorite teacher in the swimming pool.

"It was a good experience for us. We learned many things which we won't need later in life," said Igno Ramus.

HOMECOMING

It was the enthusiastic spirit that led the Knights to a 49-0 victory against the Sunset Bison for Homecoming. The game was followed by the Homecoming Dance at the Sheraton Inn, where it was announced that Kim Stivers and Greg Harthcock were Homecoming Queen and King.

The winners of the hall decorations were the Seniors first place, the SOS women second, and the Juniors third.

KIMBALL SCIENCE SYMPOSIUM

The 12th annual Science Symposium featured Leonard Gravier who spoke of the surgical correction of congenital birth defects.

As in past years the agenda included several small lecture sessions in addition to the main lecture.

This year's program drew over 600 students from metroplex high schools and featured 25 speakers on such diverse topics as "How To Keep Your Car Running and Your Date Happy," and "Black Holes: Much Ado About Nothing."

EXPERIMENTAL THEATER

Since the fall of 1977, Experimental Theater has emerged as an outstanding asset to the fine arts department. It provides opportunities for serious theater students to practice and develop advanced skills in acting, directing, playwriting, and technical production. At the same time, it offers the school and community more opportunities to see the plays.

The first play produced was "An Evening of Love and Laughter," and was directed by Kenneth Burrows, Sally Pound, and Denise Soule. The second production, "All the World's a Stage," was directed by Ronald Earl, Peggy Dunlap, and Troy Sherrod. The third and final production was the UIL One-Act play, "The Taming of the Shrew," directed by Ms. Prothro.

SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE

This year, under the direction of Peggye Dunlap, the drama department presented the all-school play, Seven Keys To Baldpate. The play, a mysterious farce, is a satire on melodramatic literature.

The story starts out with a writer who makes a bet with the owner of Baldpate that he can write a story in one night, but instead of writing a story he ends up spending the night with gangsters, crooked politicians, a hermit, and a reporter. The play had a surprise ending.

TAMING OF THE SHREW

The Taming of the Shrew, written by William Shakespeare, was presented by the drama department on March 19. The play was directed by Ms. Prothro.

Taming of the Shrew is a play about two sisters who are very different from one another. The older sister is wild and plucky; the younger, gentle and intelligent. The younger sister wants to marry, but before she can marry, the older sister must be married. No one wants to marry the older sister, however, until Petruchio comes along. He marries the older sister because of a deal he has made with the girls' father.

The cast and crew put much hard work into the play, which was presented for the UIL one-act play competition.

WORLD'S FAIR

One of Kimball's biggest activities of the year was the World's Fair. Held on February 12, the theme was an Hawaiian Paradise. The elaborate decorations added to the tropical mood.

Many clubs contributed to the success of the fair. The Senior class sponsored the sponge toss and the marriage booth, the Excalibur Staff sponsored the dating booth, and the Science Club sponsored the Haunted House.

"The Student Council feels that the World's Fair was a great success," said Tonya McMurray.

MILITARY BALL

The 23rd annual ROTC Military Ball was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall on January 29. The evening was enhanced by the entertainment provided by the Knight Beats, directed by Mr. Bud Wis. The parents of the cadets graciously provided the refreshments.

The evening was topped off with the crowning of Sheila Bruton as Battalion sweetheart. Immediately following was the Grand March in which the entire corps participated.

"The Military Ball was a great success and the corps really enjoyed themselves," said Cindy Wilson, a former corps member.

"The Cat's Meow," a show presented for the benefit of those students interested in the various arts at Kimball, was presented February 19. The title of the show came from a term used in the 1920's to refer to the best.

The show, sponsored by Ms. Prothro and Mr. Atherton, featured such acts as ballet, a gospel choir and a men's glee club. The Kimball Art Department also displayed jewelry in the foyer.

GUILDS

ORGANIZATIONS:

VALUABLE LEARNING EXPERIENCES

In an era when it seems that everyone is concerned with improving standardized test scores, one might wonder why schools even bother to offer extracurricular activities. The answer is simple. Learning comes from a variety of experiences, and extracurricular activities can provide many excellent learning opportunities.

Student organizations such as Student Council and the steering committees help prepare future leaders. By actually planning and facilitating school functions, students learn and practice leadership, teamwork, and communication skills which can help them later in life.

Members of the Thespians, Experimental Theatre, New Tymes, and the choirs also learn valuable life skills. Through their various performances they not only learn many different ways of communicating, but they also gain a better self-concept.

Organizations such as the Excalibur and "Knight Life" staffs, teach many journalistic techniques and help sharpen English skills. Through the pressure of deadlines, these students also learn how to handle stress and responsibility.

Responsibility is also taught through organizations such as the band and the drill team. Through early morning practice sessions members learn discipline and dedication. Teamwork is another important aspect in these organizations, and members learn how to work effectively with others.

As one can see, many student organizations provide excellent opportunities for learning. Granted, the skills learned may never help students pass achievement tests, but they are, nevertheless, valuable skills which can be used later in life.

MARCHING BAND

Long before most students were ready to return to school, the members of the 1981-82 Marching Knight Band were already hard at work preparing for the marching season.

Numerous changes were made by the band's new director, Mr. Wis. The drill formations were more curvilinear this year, with more action than in the past. The band attempted to use the drills to visually interpret the music, and the Flag Corps played a much more important role than in the past.

All the changes and hard work paid off, however, in the October UIL competition when the band received a superior rating of "1." Mr. Wis credits the band's excellent performance with their hard work and good attitudes. "Most of them are very good at living up to their commitments ... and they have a great deal of potential," said Mr. Wis.

KNIGHT BEATS

The Knight Beats offer the serious musician an opportunity to pursue the jazz, rock, and pop spheres of music literature.

Knight Beat members must audition, and extremely strict and precise musical skills are required.

Among their several performances this year were several concerts, two of which were with the Squires, and a DISD Concert Band Festival.

FLAG CORPS

The Flag Corps enhances and adds color to the band. It helps students get more involved with Kimball. This year's Flag Corps was bigger and played a more important part in the marching routines than it has in the past.

TROUBADEARS

Though the drill team was much smaller than past years, the power of their moves has not changed one bit. Ms. Everett explained that this was the smallest group of Troubs that she had sponsored in five years. Since there is no longer a drill team at T. W. Browne, the girls must work harder because it is a new experience.

The day before the Christmas holidays began in 1980, tryouts for the drill team were held. The group came out small but full of fire. Over the summer they held camp and learned different routines from choreographers and practiced very hard.

Willing to work overtime, the Troub officers are excellent leaders and help the other members when they need it. "The girls all work well together," said Ms. Everett. "It's tough for some when cuts have to be made, but they know that cuts are necessary at times."

J-V CHEERLEADERS

The J.V. Cheerleaders support Freshman and Junior Varsity athletics. They also help the Varsity squad lead the cheers in the pep assemblies and they made several of the spirit banners.

"Cheering for a winning J.V. team was a great experience that I will never forget," said Catha Thompson, a J.V. Cheerleader.

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS

Before the doors of the school opened for the fall semester, the Varsity Cheerleaders were already preparing for the first pep assembly. The excitement had been rising in the squad since July when they trained at SMU. They learned new cheers and practiced all of the old ones.

The cheerleaders were chosen by their grade point average, their ability as athletes, and their performance in front of the student body. The hard working cheerleaders practiced everyday, making spirit banners and decorations to promote spirit among the students and athletes before and during the football games. They also promote the basketball and volleyball teams.

Dependable and reliable, the Varsity Cheerleaders have proven their outstanding talents by the awards they have won in competition. They brought home one out of three State Championship trophies awarded by the NCA. They came in second out of 38 schools entered in the Fall City Competition, and they received Superior awards and the spirit stick at summer camp. "I am extremely proud of this group," said Ms. Vandertie.

SOS MEN

It is nearly impossible to imagine a Kimball pep assembly without the crazy antics of the men's SOS. Under the leadership of their board members, this year's SOS guys were as wild and crazy as ever.

At the Paschal pep assembly they "borrowed" a chicken to help the band perform. Although they were not able to perform as the Carter Cow Patties at the Carter assembly, a select few did perform a drill as the Carter Lasso Club. And at the Spruce pep assembly they enacted a touching funeral for a slaughtered Apache.

The SOS provided "a sense of encouragement [and] relaxation and a will to win to the football team and the entire student body . . . the underlying meaning [of our actions] was to spread spirit, along with enjoyment, to the pep assemblies, which we thought was accomplished," said board member, Greg Barrows.

7. SOS men demonstrate the fate of a Spruce Apache.
8. "Hey guys, pass Garry this way."

SOS WOMEN

Promoting spirit among the student body and especially the Senior Class is the SOS red and blue. The SOS women, sponsored by Ms. Arnold, took great delight in doing crazy things at pep assemblies, games, and everyday, like giving Mr. Blanton a scare when they took off their shirts at the W. T. White pep assembly. The "bored" members for the girls this year were: Margie Flores, Sherry Stogner, Sheri Gauldin, Peggie Dunlap, Laurie Lambrecht, and Karol Lattimore.

The SOS women had over one hundred members this year. "I have enjoyed this group the most," said Ms. Arnold, "because I have known many of these girls since they were freshmen."

CHOIRS

The fifty-eight members of Chorale and the forty members of Choraliers perform both together and separately. For the past two years Chorale and Choraliers have entered UIL Contests together. During the Christmas Program, the two choirs had their own spot.

Choraliers can move up to Chorale after one year for advanced study if they show interest and potential. On the whole the two groups relate well with each other.

NEW TYMES

Playing and singing for different places such as Union Station, Oak Cliff Lions Club, and the Crystal Ballroom were the 18 members of the New Tymes. They performed for such school activities as the El Sol Banquet and the Talent Show.

New Tymes have a very wide taste of music ranging from rock to classical. They practiced two times a week and some of the members sang for church groups. They entered UIL competition as a jazz group, but their wide range talent has no limit.

CORONA EXIMIA

Corona Eximia, which means "excellent group," is a club open to all students who have had at least one year of Latin. The club is a social organization, rather than an academic one. They went bowling and had many club meetings at Pizza Inn. Probably the most enjoyable activity of the year was their initiation, which included games to get acquainted and many "secret rituals."

"The Latin Club is a tremendous group of people," said club sponsor, Ms. Howell. "It is encouraging to see more people taking Latin and joining the club."

- 1 LaDonna Bragg, Jeff Borders, Raylyn Woods, and Sheri Stogner begin a song during morning rehearsal.
- 2 Doug Neal concentrates on his music

- 9 Christine Blackburn and Lisa Cantrell discuss an upcoming event over their dinner at Pizza Inn.

EL SOL

El Sol is for better understanding between students who speak Spanish and those who do not speak Spanish. The club also brings students together and promotes friendship. They have many fundraisers one of which was selling Doritos for a penny on initiation day. The students also had to sing the PanAmerican song and recite the state and local motto.

The highlight of the club's year was going to San Antonio for the PanAmerican Student Forum.

ALLERLEI

Allerlei is a club designed to promote interest in and understanding of German. Club membership is open to any student who is taking, or who has taken, German.

Their numerous activities included attending Novemberfest, where they participated in competitions with other German clubs in the area. The highlight of their year was their annual trip to New Braunfels in the spring.

KNIGHT LIFE

The Knight Life staff provides an outlet for students to display journalistic skills, as well as being a teaching tool. Members must have at least one year of Journalism or display outstanding writing ability.

In addition to publishing a semi-monthly edition of "Knight Life," the school newspaper, the staff also published monthly editions of the "The Counselors' Newsletter" and "Participator," the PTA newsletter.

"I enjoy teaching Journalism because it gives me the opportunity to interrelate with students on a different level than the normal classroom atmosphere," said "Knight Life" sponsor, Ms. Durbin.

IDYLLS OF THE TOWER

Kimball's literary magazine, "Idylls of the Tower" encourages and allows students to display their writing abilities.

Entries are separated and judged by categories, such as long poetry, short poetry, short stories and essays. The magazine also publishes student artwork and photography.

"I feel 'Idylls' is good because it encourages students to write and gives their composition more of a purpose," said Assistant Editor, Don Vail.

EXCALIBUR STAFF

Memories are important. The yearbook staff is responsible for putting together the memories of a school year.

Work on the 1982 Excalibur began in early August. The staff met for a week before school started to plan the book and also train new members. Once school began, the staff worked officially during seventh period, but it was not unusual to find them working long afternoons and even late into the night. The result of all the hard work, however, was well worth the effort. The staff produced a book which they were proud to call the 1982 Excalibur.

STUDENT COUNCIL

In many schools the Student Council is simply an organization which plans school activities, but the Kimball Student Council is much more. The Council helps to train and develop student leaders to serve not only at Kimball, but also later in life.

Members of the Council are selected on the basis of grade point average and faculty recommendations. The members are also required to take a one semester course entitled "Leadership I," which helps teach them the skills they need to become good leaders.

This year's Council set three goals for the year. They wanted to promote unity and school spirit, develop a one-to-one relationship with the student body and faculty, and establish a foundation on which future councils can build.

In addition to planning Homecoming and the World's Fair, the Student Council also planned appreciation days for the office clerks, Mr. Thomas, club sponsors, and others; and they hosted receptions for the people who attended the Spruce and Grand Prairie pep assemblies.

When asked her opinion of the Council, Ms. Vandertie replied, "I think it's a privilege to work with and help develop student leaders. This year's group had some worthwhile goals and their ultimate aim was to serve Kimball . . . I think Kimball is fortunate to have a program available to help develop student leaders and I sincerely enjoy working with them."

SOPHOMORE STEERING COMMITTEE

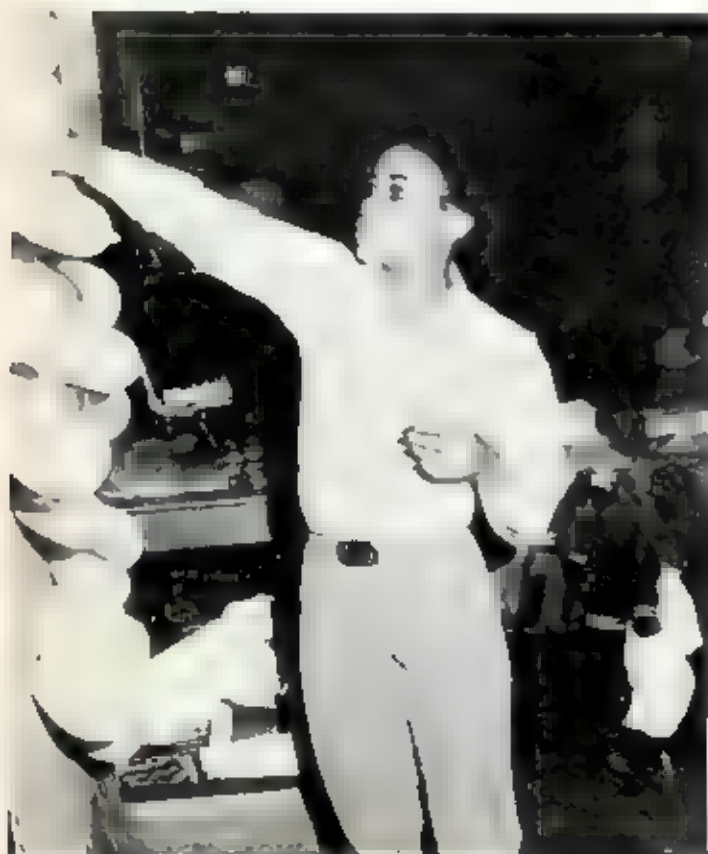

The Sophomore Steering Committee was the decision-making body for the class of 1984. The members were chosen by the sponsors through an application, teacher recommendation and a personal interview. Their main goal was to raise money for their senior year, which they did by participating in the World's Fair and several bake sales.

THESPIANS

The International Thespian Society helps promote quality theatre in high schools. Their primary activity was rehearsing and presenting plays.

Thespian members are selected on the basis of a point system. Points are received for play attendance, participation in plays, and drama class attendance.

"The International Thespian Society is an honor society based on student participation. The group is only as good as the quality of participation," said Ms. Prothro.

FBLA

Future Business Leaders of America is an organization for high school students interested in business or office careers.

Emphasis of the Kimball chapter is centered around student interest, field trips, civic service, and social activities. They also attend district and state conferences, or conventions, where they participate in various contests and hold elections for district and state officers.

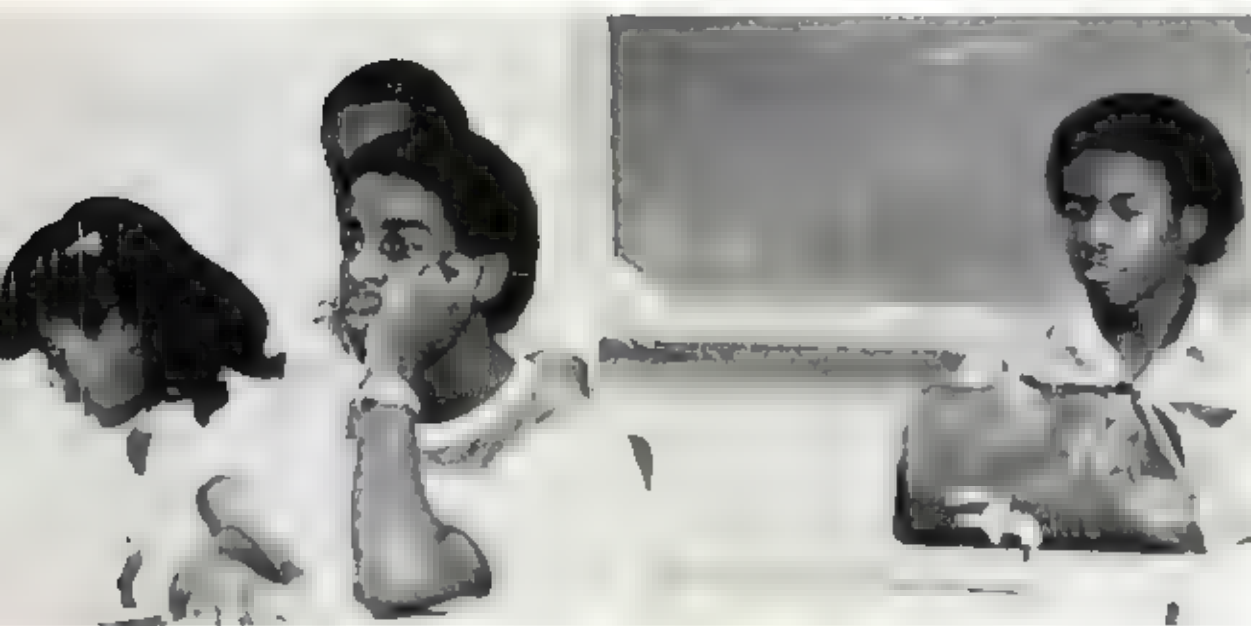

The Kimball chapter of FBLA also awards a $100 scholarship to an outstanding senior member.

SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club is an extension of the classroom learning experience and is designed to help students become better acquainted with the science world. The sponsors are Ms. Malone, Ms. Berry and Mr. Headrick. They play an important part in the club.

The Science Club went to various places such as the Arkansas Diamond Mines and Corpus Christi. They also sponsored the Science Symposium in November.

- 5 Cindy Wilson and Ms. Malone discuss plans for the Science Club.

FHA

The purpose of the Future Homemakers of America is to establish leadership skills and to meet new people. They had various service projects, one of which was visiting the elderly.

Six officers and twelve room representatives were elected to help plan the activities.

Each year FHA gives a scholarship to two outstanding members who are planning to major in Home Economics.

"I think that FHA is a rewarding group with skilled sponsors," said Cassandra DeGraffenreid.

DECA

The Distributive Education Clubs of America are designed to stimulate students in competition and expose them to the business world.

Their activities included local, area, state, and national competition in five categories including advertising, apparel and accessories, and general merchandizing.

Sponsor Mr. Tanco believes that DECA is a good organization because it teaches competition and "competition is what makes the world go 'round."

WOODS AND WATERS

In this age of asphalt, skyscrapers, and autos, there are still people with a fascination for the outdoors. Woods and Waters, sponsored by Mr. Howard, is a club devoted to the interests of such people.

Woods and Waters is a club designed to develop and test skills acquired in a natural environment. Through various outdoor activities, such as canoeing, backpacking, fishing, and horseback riding, members gain knowledge and an appreciation of life outside the comforts of civilization.

PATHFINDERS

Pathfinders helps students to learn the skills necessary for enjoyment of the "great outdoors." These skills include camping, backpacking, map reading, natural food selection, and emergency procedures.

As active members, students must participate in a total of seven campouts and serve as leaders on two of these outings. These expectations must be completed without the comforts of modern life. The campouts are designed to teach initiative, cooperation, and resourcefulness to the participant.

According to sponsor, Mr. Howard, members of Pathfinders are "interested in the outdoors and enjoy 'roughing it.'"

1. Club members include sports among their outdoor activities.
2. Woods and Waters members clown around at a retreat at Austin's Dude Ranch
3. Experiences such as horseback riding teach members to enjoy nature.

ROTC

The purpose of the Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps is to provide training in leadership, citizenship, and responsibility. This year's ROTC won the honor star and maintained a high state of efficiency.

"The ROTC is like a large club where you learn about the Armed Forces. ROTC can get you ahead in the work force because employers think you are better disciplined than those not in ROTC," said Michell Willis.

FORMULA FOR A SUCCESSFUL TEAM

What makes up a successful team? Is it the coaching staff, those who oversee every part of the games to make sure the team plays up to its full potential? Or is it the team itself — the group of players who expend their energies and time towards that final goal to be the best? This is a question many would like to have answered, because if the solution were found then nothing would hold back the power of those who had it. No this cannot be simply defined, but it can be understood.

The athlete himself is the basic unit of the sport, and is easily the most important. He is the one who devotes his time and energies and risks his health. The devoted team member will sacrifice whatever time is necessary in preparation for his sport, whether it be practice or performance. The players that create a victorious team consistently have the same qualities. They work as a team; that means no one is considered to be the finest athlete and no one is considered to be the poorest. These people realize the team is only as good as all the members combined. Also, accomplished — teams have determination — the will to practice and practice until they have the skill that is required . . . and still practice. These are the players that do not allow defeat to crush them, or let lack of school spirit destroy their morale. These are the type of athletes that make a prosperous season.

The coaches, too, are important. They are the craftsmen that cut and shave and polish until they have the perfect object. They, like the team, expend their energy and time towards that unattainable goal: perfection. A successful coaching staff requires the backbone to be demanding — to push the players on — yet it still demands understanding, an awareness that the athletes are humans and need sympathy, even if it is not always given easily. Coaches direct the players, and can proudly sit back and say to a triumphant team, "Well done!"

Of course, the spectators, too, are an important part of success. Spectators boost morale, with pep assemblies and game attendance. The finest teams consistently have school support. Spectators can take claim in the effort involved to make a team win.

This talk of "success" may all seem abstract, but it is not. In the pages that follow, the reader can see how much was accomplished this year, how many goals were surpassed. These teams won because they had all the components of a championship team, and all of these parts worked together to form a precision instrument. That instrument made Kimball the school of winners.

Kimball won the 12-AAAAA title with such ease that it will surely be remembered in the years to come. Such outstanding players as Arthur Allen, Michael Price, and Don King helped the Knights create a perfect 10-0 season. Due to the unity of the players, Kimball created a team that won the City Championship.

Practice began during the summer, when the Varsity team went to a junior college to lift weights in preparation for the season. On September 4, when the first game was played, Coach Hitchcock set a goal of winning three of the first four games. The Knights won all four. Then, once Kimball attained the 6-0 record, he decided to set up District as a goal. After the Sunset game, with the championship clinched, they strove for a perfect season. On November 12, at the Pinkston game, Kimball won 37-13, completing an undefeated season.

The players considered school spirit an important factor in their games. Many said slow pep-assemblies produced slow games. During the initial games, spirit was said to be poor. The media, too, responded slowly. They had the general attitude that Kimball won the games because of "luck." However, as one team member stated, "That wasn't upsetting, because the newspaper didn't win any games for us."

Many of the players felt the team was successful due to the coaching staff, especially Head Coach Hitchcock. When asked why the team did so well this year, he said it was due to the team's "unselfishness, unity and dedication to the game."

By beating Arlington Sam, it was the first time since '76 that a Kimball team had won the opening game. We coasted on through the next two games, 48-7 and 42-0, compiling over 500 total yards on offense during the Paschal game. This was the first time since '69 that Kimball had been 3-0..."

"Our success has been due to great coaching and preparation. The team's work as a unit, the cooperation between backs and linemen, team speed and quickness, and everyone's heart and character have combined to mold a team that won't quit."

J.V. FOOTBALL

Following in the varsity team's footsteps, the J.V. Red and Blue teams won the district 12-A AAAA title for the second consecutive year. Good coaching and determination on the players' part created the near perfect season.

The team's toughest opponents this year were Carter and W. T. White. The team's only loss was to Lake Highlands by the score of 8-6. This did not discourage the Knights. They went on to end the season with a 10-1 record.

Practice for the J.V. football teams began in the summer month of August under the direction of Coaches Tubbs and Lark. Practice was held at Cedar Valley College along with the varsity team and consisted of weight lifting, running laps and the usual strenuous exercises required of fine football players.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

The Freshman football team began practice during the summer. They emphasized conditioning with weight lifting and running. The pre-season workouts paid off, for the team went on to finish with a 7-3 record with the help of such outstanding members as Willie Long, Darryl Lewis, Keaton Smiley, Troy Simpson, and Oscar Epps. The team's toughest opponents this year were Carter and Samuell.

VOLLEYBALL

Practice for the 1981 Volleyball season began in the summer. The pre-season games were held during the first week of September. The game was power volleyball — making sure that every ball that goes over the net is a spike or a change-up dink — and the strategy was a 5-1 offense. With returning lettermen Karen Allen, Brenda Carr, and Lisa Green the team finished second in district with 9 wins and 3 losses. Coach Elzroth said, "There were no real standouts, all the girls had about the same level of talent. Karen Allen developed a consistent spike and dink and was most reliable because of her consistency."

GIRL'S BASKETBALL

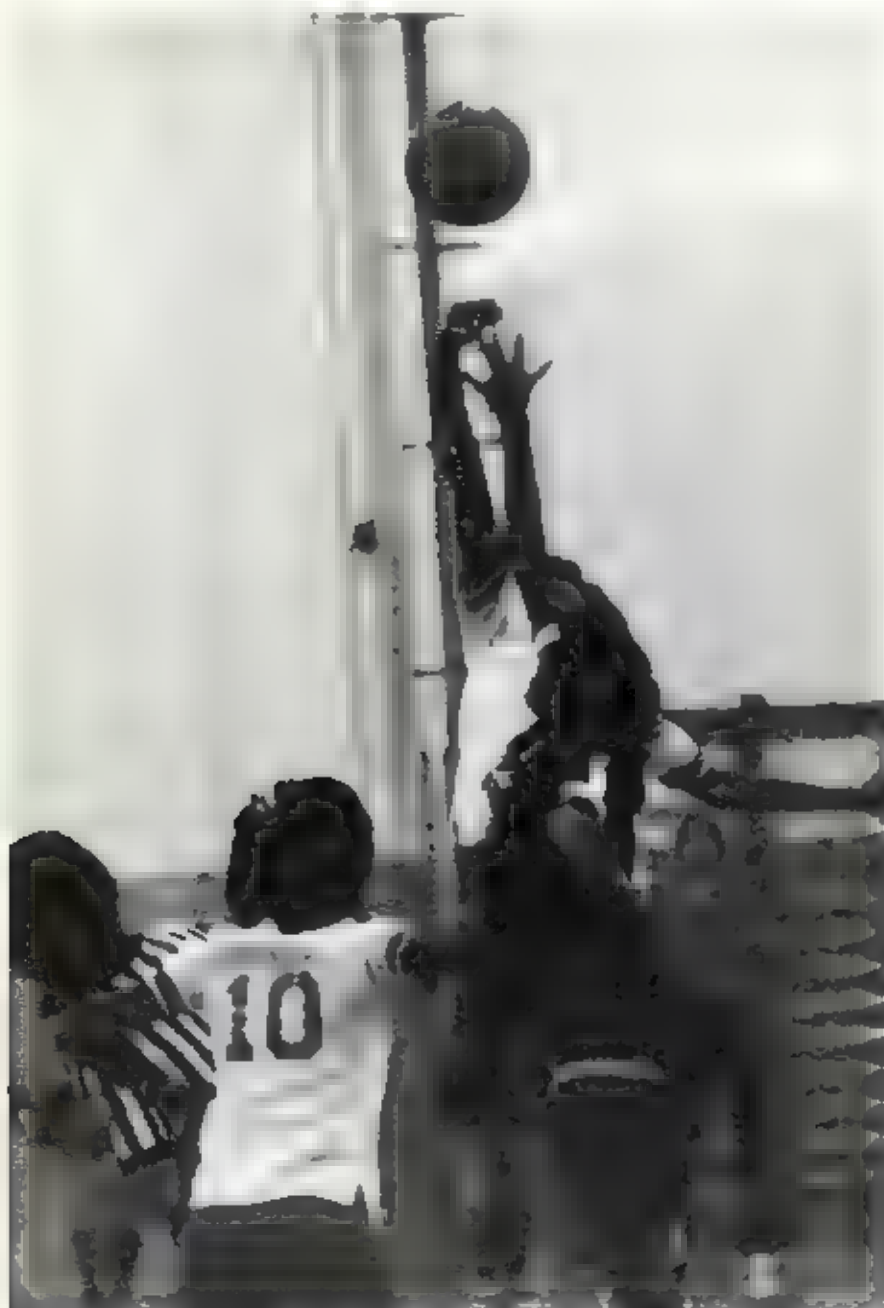

It was team effort that contributed to the success of girls' basketball this year. They began with a victorious 8-7 pre-season record and they also tied for first with Carter and Pinkston in the First Round District.

The team consisted of returning lettermen Karen Allen, Robin Thomas, Joannette Gales, and Brenda Carr, players Thal Harris, Kim White, Laveda White, Sharon Blair, Carol Jones and Zelda Johnson.

When asked about the best players, Coach Weems replied, "I felt the whole team played well."

The boys' Soccer team began their extensive training early in November for their first game against Roosevelt.

Out of the 22 members on the team, three were returning lettermen — Kenneth Payne, Donald Fluker, and Anthony Canales. The team's goal, set by Coach Hunter, was to make it to the playoffs. Most players agreed that Sunset was the team's toughest competition and rival.

The players felt the team was unified this year. Doug Hankins said, "We have a very hard working team."

BOWLING

The Kimball Bowling Team opened their fourth season on August 31. The team practiced and held most of its competitions at Bronco Bowl. The team was divided into six two-member teams, with scores ranging from 140 to 160.

When asked about the bowling team's progress, Monica Winnett stated, "The bowling team would be better if there were more interested people on the team."

3. Showing good form in her bowling skills, Sandra DeLosSantos gets ready to roll a strike
4. Rita McClendon sends the ball down the lane

WRESTLING

Following the trend of most Kimball sports toward success, the wrestling team won both District and Regional titles this year. The season started December 1 with a loss against South Oak Cliff. Though this changed the team's expectations for the year, Coach Harmon felt the loss was an important one, for it strengthened the ability of the team to wrestle.

The team spent countless hours in practice on conditioning and developing techniques.

When asked which wrestlers outdid themselves, Coach Harmon remarked, "This has been a good year and at any one point during the season, every wrestler has displayed courage and determination."

3. A few words of advice before the game were a requisite that Coach Harmon knew the team could not do without.
4. Watched closely by a referee, Sherman Lacy goes into the final stage of "shooting" a Madison player

GOLF

By tying for sixth place in the Fall Tournament, the golf team had an optimistic outlook early in the year. Their anticipations were confirmed when Mark Carlberg and Joey Ellis were recognized as two of the top 20 golfers in the district.

Out of the ten players on the team, four were returning lettermen. Coach Janosko, who has led the team for three years, felt this strengthened the team. He also saw promise in the new team members, especially Tommy Carlberg.

Returning letterman Jay Lattimore said, "This year's golf team is definitely the best I have played on since my freshman year. If we were in the same district as two years ago, this team would certainly have won."

1. Leading the team's scoring with an average in the high 70's, Mark Carlberg shows off his winning style
2. Tommy Carlberg ponders over the aim of his shots. Concentration proved to be the one most important factor in golf
3. A grooved stroke gives Tony Williams the power he needs to become a successful golfer.

TRACK

The track team began its 21st year with 30 members, six of which were returning lettermen. The team began practice early in February and competed in the first season match on February 27 in the Spruce Invitational. To prime themselves, the track team lifted weights and ran laps sixth and seventh periods.

Early in the year the players set a goal of making it to the Regionals. Paul Petitt said, "This year's team is better than any we've had in the past few years."

GIRLS TRACK

Developing endurance was a vital part of the girls' track season. To prove their perseverance, the girls had to run from the bottom of Boulder hill to the top after workout. This was a small part of their daily practice routine

The girls' track team began practice February 8th, and the season began in early March. Coach Weems felt the team could win the district title

Laura Botello said, "I think team effort and unity have been essential for this season's accomplishments."

BASEBALL

Opening the season with a scrimmage game against Irving Nimitz, the baseball team felt they were well prepared for the season. Practice, which began February first, consisted of stretching, situations on bases, batting drills, and finally, full practice play. Coach Gray saw a great potential in the team early in the season.

The team had high expectations for the year, and looked forward to the game with Duncanville, their toughest competition. The talent on the team was overwhelming. One of the 8 returning lettermen, Monte Horsechief, was named All-District Player by the Dallas Times Herald.

Speaking about the team's goal, JV player, Ruben Valdez said, "We're planning on bringing the trophy home this year."

TENNIS

The Kimball Tennis Team began its lengthy season in mid-September. Daily workouts prepared them for matches against their toughest opponent, W.T. White.

Achieving the District Championship was the teams goal because of the potential of the players. Speaking about why the tennis team did so well, two year letterman Allison Smith said, "A lot of other teams just wanted to play around, but we didn't just want to play, we wanted to win."

KING ARTHUR'S COURT

PRINCIPAL DR. CHARLES BLANTON

One of Kimball's greatest attributes is our principal, Dr. Charles Blanton. Not only has he proven to be one of the finest principals in Dallas, he is also one of the friendliest. His warmth and sincerity have earned him respect and admiration of the student body, as well as teachers and parents.

In addition to his responsibilities at Kimball, he is an active community volunteer and church member, as well as a devoted husband and father.

When asked if he enjoyed being principal at Kimball, he replies "yes. The old statement about the excitement of young people is true as never before. The greatest resource of America is the youth who are the leadership and citizens of the twenty-first century. It is exciting to see and be part of the preparation of that leadership."

ASSISTANT PRINCIPALS

The jobs of Dean of Instruction and Assistant Principal are very important ones.

Mr. Robert Giesler, who has been at Kimball for four years is the Dean of Instruction. He works closely with the counselors and assists in preparing students schedules.

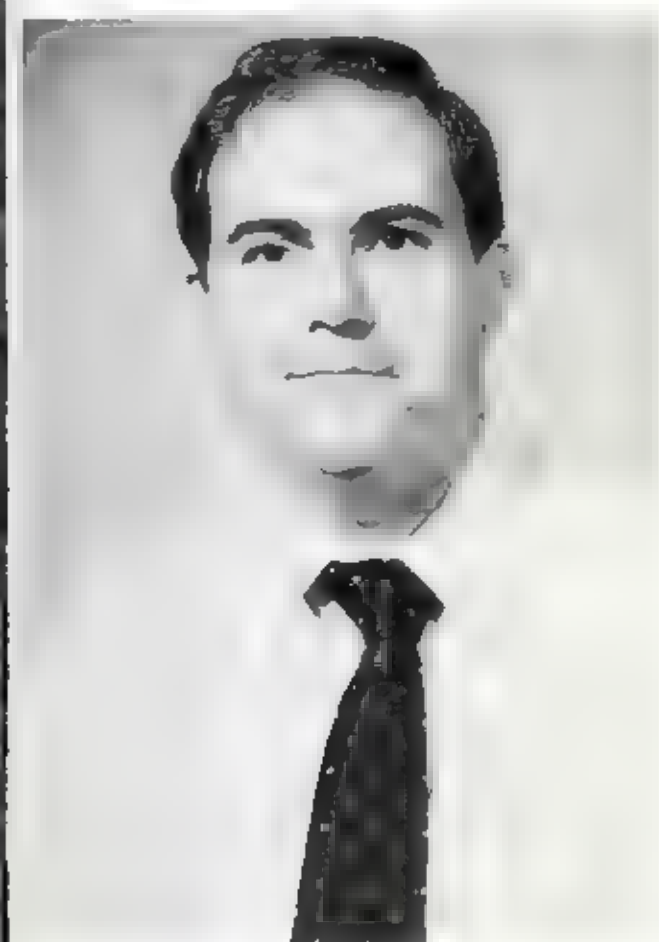

Kimball's four assistant principals are Mr. Alonzo Williams, Mr. Billy Poteet, Dr. Arturo Salazar, and Mr. James Sheets. They organize all of the school activities and events, as well as assist the clubs in any way they can.

Devoted Teachers Sponsor Extracurricular Activities

In addition to the many hours they spend preparing for classes, several teachers also spend countless hours sponsoring student organizations. These teachers receive no extra pay for these added responsibilities; they simply enjoy working with students.

These teachers spend long days helping students plan and carry out activities. They are often at school long after they have to be, and occasionally they give us their free evenings to attend club activities.

Mr. Fracchia speaks for most sponsors when he says, "Activities afford teachers the opportunity to interact with students in another dimension. Sponsorship encourages personal and professional growth on the part of the teacher and allows students to gain from the faculty's experience and enthusiasm."

KNIGHTS OF THE ROUNDTABLE

KAREN ALLEN

When a job needed to be done, the call went in to Karen Allen. There was no assignment too unimportant for her full attention. The J.F.K. Student Council benefitted immensely from her participation and the Class of 1982 was in capable hands during her tenure as President. Karen's talents were also manifested on the volleyball court where she earned all-district honors.

In addition, Karen managed to compile impressive scholastic credentials in the midst of her Kimball career.

RONNIE
EARL

Determined! Motivated! Disciplined! Conscientious! These are only a few of the words used by the faculty to describe Ronnie Earl. His unselfish and talent-laden contributions to Kimball's plays, musicals, and choral groups cannot be fully listed here. He participated, furthermore, with America's Youth in Concert on a tour of Europe. Understandably, Ronnie's classroom efforts earned him a place on the J.F.K. chapter of the National Honor Society.

GREG HARTHCOCK

Each year, when Exaclibur announced class favorites, Greg Harthcock was sure to be high on everyone's list. Personable and intelligent, his talents ranged from the athletic field, where he was a valuable performer on the Knight's record-setting squad, to the classroom. In recognition of his academic achievements, Greg was tapped to be a member of the National Honor Society. He crowned his senior year by being nominated to the title of King in the J.F.K. Homecoming Court.

Outstanding athletic ability marked Mendy Hill's performance as a Knight cheerleader. Her dedication and style contributed immeasurably to the success of the squad's goal — the instillation of spirit in every member of the student body. Besides serving as a steering committee member for four years, Mendy managed to maintain an impressive GPA as well as qualifying for the French National Honor Society.

MARGARITA HOLGUIN

Margarita Holguin's years at Kimball were filled with a wide range of interests and activities. Her musical talent blossomed to the extent that she was elected to the All City Orchestra. Moreover, Margarita served as the President of the Student Council, leading the group to another banner year. Few were the students that did not benefit from her leadership ability and intense dedication.

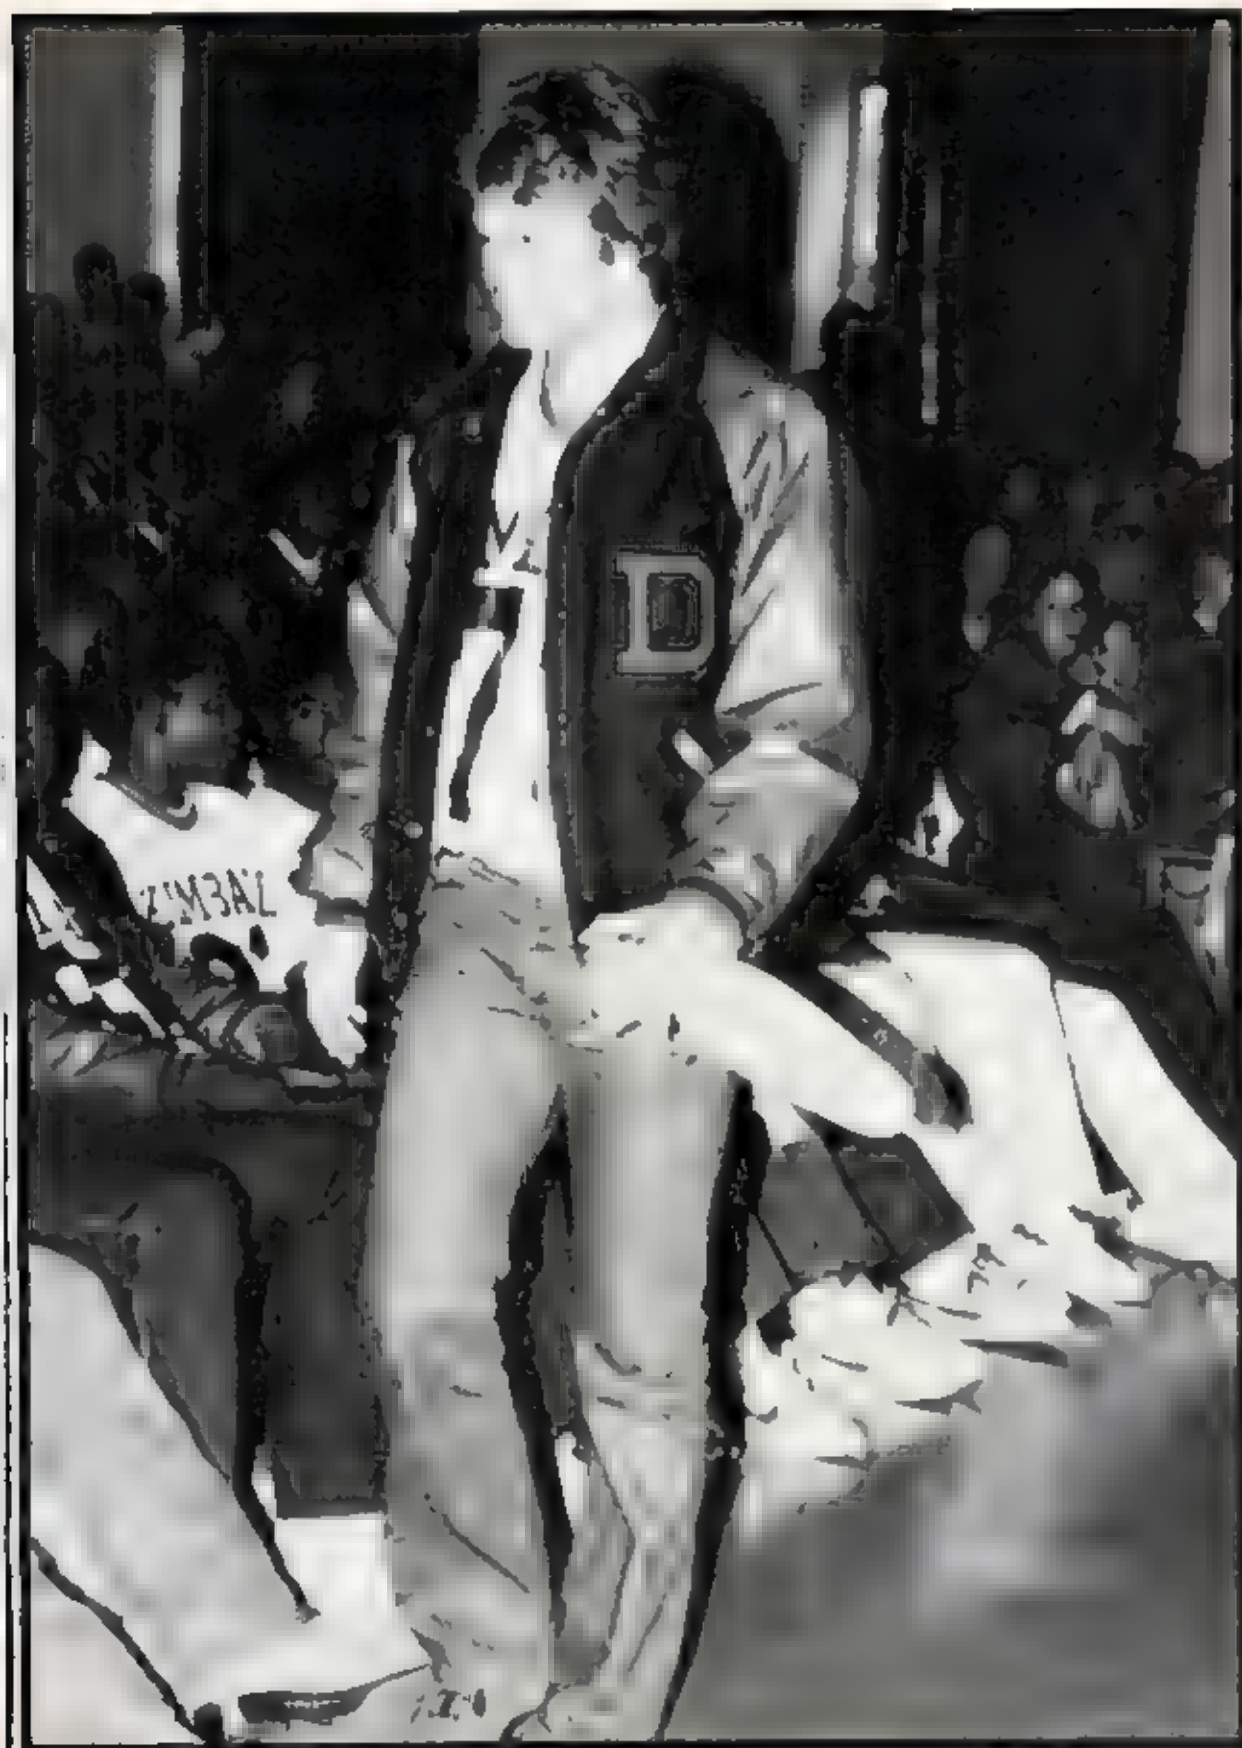

MIKE JONES

Mike Jones exemplifies the successful pursuit of the Knight pledge, "We always seek the best." His years at J.F.K. were a lesson in leadership, integrity, and academic performance. Mike served as Sir Justin during his senior year, an honor coveted by many but held by a select few. He still found time to star for the baseball team and serve as President of NHS. His scholastic ability was evidenced by his nomination as a National Merit Finalist.

PAULA LONG

Talented, scholarly, and beautiful best describes Paula Long. As Captain of the Troubadears, Paula displayed outstanding leadership qualities. In addition, she was elected to the National Honor Society, and voted Kimball's "Outstanding Business Student." An all-around American girl, Paula was selected "Most Beautiful" by her peers in 1982.

DAVID PATTERSON

David Patterson's charming and unassuming personality belied the fact that he was a key member of the Knight drive to the City Football Championship. An exemplary team player, David still managed to attract enough attention to be named to the second all-district team. This did not distract David, however, from his academic duties. In summary, he was a student leader that everyone looked to for inspiration and assurance.

JOE SAGNIBENE

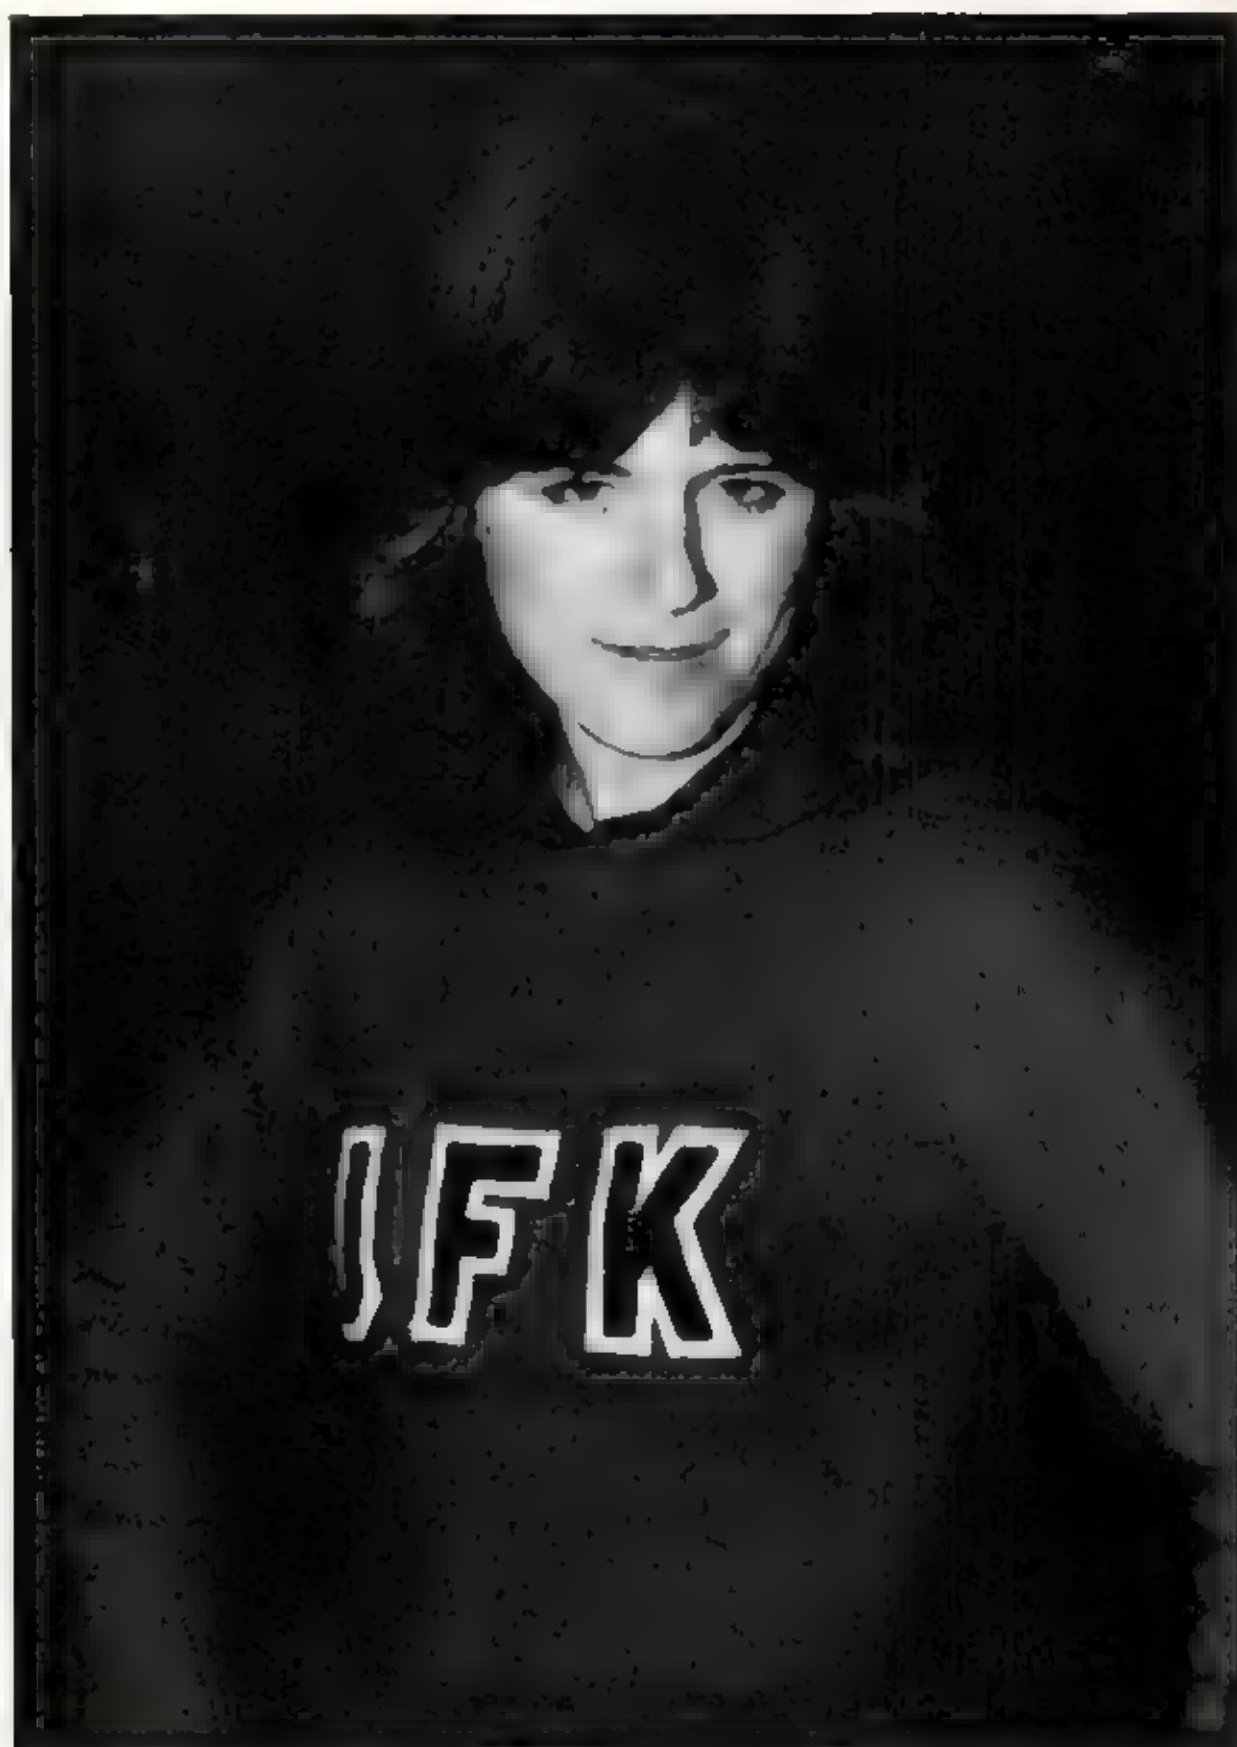

The J.F.K. coaches were quick to label Joe Sagnibene as a 110%er. His unselfish attitude and personable demeanor were evident in all of his activities. Joe's leadership was apparent in his student council participation, and he was always an inspirational and dedicated member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Despite his busy schedule, Joe found time to sing with the Choral Union and serve on all of his class steering committees.

CATHY SANCHEZ

Reliable, Responsible, and enthusiastic were the attributes most frequently directed to Cathy Sanchez. Her years as a cheerleader were marked by a rising tide of school spirit. Cathy's activities extended to the athletic field where she earned two letters as a performer on the J.F.K. Soccer team. In addition to actively participating in several organizations, Cathy was nominated to membership in both the French and Spanish National Honor Societies.

KIM STIVERS

Genuine beauty within and without characterized the sincere and vivacious Kim Stivers. Her concern for everyone was apparent and Kim became everybody's friend. Kim served as a Kimball cheerleader and served as the Queen of the Homecoming Court her senior year. Characteristically, Kim served on the Court each of her years at Kimball. Moreover, she played soccer and received three letters in the process.

BETH WILSON

After a half of football, no J.F.K. fan rushed to the refreshment stand. The Knight Band was a show well worth waiting for, and Beth Wilson was an integral part of the music and precision marching. Her leadership as one of the drum majors helped lead the band to an honor-filled year in 1981-1982. Besides displaying excellent musical talent, Beth received many academic accolades including election to membership in the National Honor Society.

K nights

As a senior there are many moments to remember and cherish for as long as you are of a stable mind (which may not be for long). Such as when the live chicken was thrown at the band, when our crazy S.O.S. guys were the Carter Dance Team, when the Troubs began their routine at the pep assembly about three times, when cheerleader sponsor, Ms. Vander-tie, limped around for a good long while, when quick tempers erupted into a fight at the Carter game and we were put on probation, when Mr. Thomas was honored for the day, when lovely Kim Stivers (after receiving Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior princess titles) became Homecoming Queen, and best of all when we won City Championship.

Along with being a senior came many heavy responsibilities like finding a decent job so you could pay off your senior contract, ducking principals and teachers in the hall so you would not get caught in clean sweep that second or third time, and finding a date for the prom.

Seriously now, being at the end of our high school days means a great many things for many of us. Some of us will be going on to college, others to successful careers, and others just to earn a decent living. So always be proud of the fact that you stand with the Knights who plan on being someone in this big society of ours.

Also remember, as one of the smallest classes ever to graduate from Kimball, we are still the best in class and laughs. Among us there are many geniuses and scholars which will make many stop and say — There goes one who could only be of the few . . . "Class of '82."

THE IMPORTANCE OF TRADITIONS

Traditions make up a large part of our lives. This is what we have tried to convey in the 1982 EXCALIBUR. We have brought back the original Sir Justin, which originated in 1962. We have also combined ideas from past years with new ideas of our own.

As in nature, traditions in our lives should be carried out year after year. Changes are necessary and should be made, but the main reason for doing these things should stay the same. Without traditions we would have nothing to fall back on and nothing to grow up with. Traditions are the stability we need in our ever changing world.

I sincerely hope that the Knights that are graduating will always remember the traditions they carried out and the traditions they began. I am sure the Knights who come after us will follow in our footsteps. In closing, I would like to say thank you to all who began these traditions, new and old, and made this yearbook possible.

Being no stranger to daydreams, I would like to take this opportunity to utter a few observations about fantasy. We've come a long way from the days of witchcraft, yet never has life seemed so permeated with fantasy. Television even offers a man with a curious Latin accent and a midget who can grant us our wildest wish on a deserted island.

I cannot help but feel that yearbook production is somehow tied up with fantasy of a sort. Every staff member envisages a book with original layouts, snappy copy, appealing photography, and flashy special effects. Some may even dream of going on to edit some of our most prestigious publications.

As in every endeavor, however, deadlines loom large, words won't flow, and the right photograph seems to elude the grasp of the weary editor. This is as it should be. The 1982 Excalibur is a book put together by very real students who worked very hard to publish a book that will stay fresh on the shelf for many years to come. The fantasy of producing a book that ranks with graphic masterpieces is, therefore, not so unrealistic. Time is the most perishable of all our assets. It is my belief that the staff has created a masterpiece that will stand proud because it succeeds in freezing time for all of us, a fantasy that we all need now and then.

Finally, a word of thanks to the administration and faculty of J.F.K. Your patience and cooperation are eternally appreciated. This is, of course, evident by the pictures below. One shows Ms. Durbin modeling the latest in swimwear. Actually, she was a fantastic sport for letting us take pictures of her swim team giving her a playful dunking. (Thanks here go to Ms. Arnold also.) The next picture is just a typical expression on a typical Kimball teacher. It really helps to see these encouraging smiles every day.

A MESSAGE FROM THE EDITORS

One of the greatest assets Kimball has is its closeness. The student body excels in being friendly as well as courteous. Together we showed other schools how much spirit we had. It was amazing how we all stood up and cheered together at the Spruce football game — not just small groups or individuals, but everyone who was there. It was a great feeling to know so many people cared about their school.

Julie Cunningham
Activities/Album Editor

To the Seniors of 1982:

It seems only yesterday we walked into this building for the first time, freshmen. Now, four years later, the time has flown by and all that is left are the memories . . . the memories of the victories and the losses . . . but most of all, the memories of the people who made up the moments of these past four years. As we prepare to leave and go our separate ways, those memories will go with us, for they are a part of us.

Tonya Kay McMurray
Business Manager/
Organizations Editor

The annual staff was special because we cared about one another. At times we had to stay up at school until we thought we would get sick of each other, yet we remained friends. Putting an annual together is hard, and often frustrating, so it was important that the staff got along well. Our closeness made the book better.

KNIGHTS OF THE PAST

Justin F. Kimball

Dr. Justin F. Kimball was one of Texas' most versatile citizens. He was born on a farm near Huntsville, Texas in 1872. His family's background consisted of teachers, preachers, and scholars. He learned to speak both Hebrew and Greek and earned three college degrees by the time he was twenty-seven.

Dr. Kimball had many professional interests. He not only taught school at every level from elementary school to college, but served as superintendent of the Dallas Public Schools. At one time he was vice-president of Baylor University. He was a lawyer, and he was the author of Our Dallas, which has been adopted as the official history of our city.

W. P. Durrett

For sixteen years Mr. Durrett was the heart of Kimball. He had excellent qualities as a principal, and he had a genuine interest in the welfare of all students.

Before coming to Kimball, Mr. Durrett was a coach at Oak Cliff High School, which is now Adamson, for fifteen years. He was also principal at both Margaret B. Henderson Elementary School and Boude Storey Junior High School.

Mr. Durrett has helped to mold Kimball into what it is today. Hopefully the changes made in the future will follow the high standard he set for us.

SIR JUSTINS OF THE PAST

In the legends of King Arthur, a knight epitomized the very best in men. He was chivalrous, brave, and gallant. A knight was someone who was looked up to and respected.

At Kimball the qualities of knighthood are symbolized in the character of Sir Justin. Sir Justin represents the very best Kimball offers and exemplifies the motto "We always seek the best."

Because of all he represents, the selection of Sir Justin is a very careful process. At the end of their junior year, guys who wish to become Sir Justin for the next year apply and are interviewed by the assistant principals, who then choose the one person who is best able to represent the qualities of a Kimball Knight.

The person selected is responsible for leading and keeping order at the pep assemblies. His character must be above reproach, for he represents Kimball and is looked up to and respected by all.

There may be reasons why
 I have not been able to meet before at the time.

Business efforts to reduce unemployment in the copper markets were not enough to bring the price of the metal back to the levels of the 1920s. Further price support through government intervention has been required. In 1981, the U.S. government established a new copper stockpile, and the U.S. and Canada agreed to limit their exports of the metal. In 1982, the U.S. government announced that it would double the stockpile and allow U.S. exports of 1,000,000 and 1.5 million pounds per year to rise to about 1.75 million pounds.

A relatively small number of people are involved

KIMBALL WINS CITY

After most other schools had packed away their football gear for the season, the Kimball Knights were still fighting hard. Due to the fierce determination of the team and the steady leadership of Coach Hitchcock, the Knights won the District title and proceeded to win the City Championship. The game, played in the Cotton Bowl, was a close one, with the Spruce Apaches ahead 20-19 with four minutes remaining in the game, Arthur Allen sprinted seventy-eight yards for a touchdown. Kimball tallied once more to post a 34-20 victory.

The winning did not continue. In the Regional game at Texas Stadium, the Knights suffered a heartbreaking defeat, losing 7-3 to the Grand Prairie Gophers. This was not, however, an easy win for the Gophers. In the fourth quarter, with Kimball leading 3-0, the Knight defense held the Gophers from the one yard line for four consecutive plays. Then, with a little over one minute remaining in the game, Knight quarterback Don King fumbled, giving the Gophers the chance they needed to score a touchdown.

No matter how well future Knights play, Kimball will never have another city championship, nor will any Dallas school because the U.I.L. changed the alignment of the playoffs. Under any conditions; however, the Knights will always excel.
